▶▶ GETTING INTO THE ACTIVITY

The NHS are working hard to help treat people and look after our country. Show your thanks by creating bunting to place in your window or around your house.

Cut large triangles from sheets of A4 paper. You'll need 5 or 6 large triangles. On each one draw a picture or write some words linked with the NHS. You might want to include the NHS logo, a picture of a doctor or nurse, a drawing of a hospital, a love heart or the words 'Thank You'. Make the bunting as colourful as you can.

Once complete ask a grown-up to create holes in the top corners of each triangle. Feed a length of string or wool through the holes on each triangle until you form a line of bunting. Make sure you leave some extra string at each end to help hang the bunting up.

Hang the bunting in a window or somewhere around the house, to help show your thanks for all that the NHS is doing.
