Celebrate the 75th anniversary of VE Day (8th May) by holding a party with your family.

VE Day this year marks 75 years since the end of World War II. In 1945, VE Day was a big celebration with the whole country happy that the fighting was over. There were street parties across Britain.

If we weren't in lockdown, then street parties and other celebrations would have been taking place this year to celebrate 75 years. Hold your own celebration at home with a mini 'street party' just for your family. You could decorate the house with homemade bunting, wear red, white & blue, prepare food for a tea party, play some family games together, learn a wartime song or give three cheers for all the soldiers who fought in World War II.

Why not hold the party in your front garden or driveway if you have one, and encourage your neighbours (you could put a note through their door) to do the same to help create a street celebration, suitable for these social distancing times?

WHAT YOU'LL NEED

- Food & Drink
- Games
- Bunting
- Music

NOTES FOR PARENTS & CARERS

All activity should be supervised by an adult. Share pictures of your VE Day party with your BB group or post on social media using #BBatHOME and #VEDay75.
