

REMEMBRANCE WALK

▶▶ GETTING INTO THE ACTIVITY

Explore how your local area was impacted and responded to WW1 and WW2 as part of a remembrance walk.

The week before your remembrance walk, do some research about your local area during both World Wars. Try to find sites of interest such as where bombs fell, where air raid shelters were placed, if buildings were used for factories etc. Also have a look to see if you can find any information about soldiers from your local area that fought in either of the wars. A local historian could help with this.

The week of your remembrance walk, head out on a walk of your local area. Try to take in as many sites as you can from your research. If you've managed to find pictures of what the sites looked like during the wars, then take these with you and compare them with how they look now. Can you find anything at the sites that dates back to either of the wars?

Finish your remembrance walk by visiting your local war memorial. Take a look at the names on the memorial. Can you find the names of any of the soldiers you found information about, from your research?
