▶▶ GETTING INTO THE ACTIVITY

Take a moment to think about how God made me and you.

Creation Races: Split into teams and give each team some playdough and a list of the same ten items (i.e Dog, burger, shark, fried egg). On go, the first person in the team can secretly be told the first word and use the playdough to create that object for their team to guess. Once guessed correctly, the next person can be told the second word. Repeat until all 10 words have been guessed. The first team to finish is the winner. (Use breakout rooms and the whiteboard function if on Zoom.)

As a group think about the following questions:

- How difficult was it to create objects from playdough? Were you proud of your creations or were they a bit rushed?
- What have you created in the past that you're proud of? Why?
- The Bible tells us that God made us. What part of the body do you think would have been the hardest to make? Could you make a good person out of playdough?
- How special does it feel to know that God made you?

Next time you're feeling a bit sad or not very special, remember that you're made by God. He created you with love and made you unique. God thinks you're so special that he only made one of you. How cool is that!
