GETTING INTO THE ACTIVITY

An interactive quiz where the answers are full of colour!

'Colour Clash' puts your knowledge to the test, by seeing if you know your reds from your greens and your blacks from blue. This activity can be delivered in a number of ways.

Knock the Colour: Print off the 8 colour cards and stick these to bowling pins or water bottles. You'll need a set for each family member playing. Someone not playing should read out a question from the sheet and then those playing race to knock over the correct answer(s). The person to knock over the correct answer first wins the point. To do this you could kick footballs or throw sock balls from a distance to knock over the skittles. Skittles accidentally knocked over can be picked back up.

Show Your Hand: A less active version of the game. Each person should have a set of the colour cards or similar coloured objects from around the house. Someone not playing should ask the question and each person decides which card(s)/object(s) they will use to answer it. All at the same time, those playing should reveal their answer. Any person with the correct answer gets the point.

Make it harder by not telling those playing how many colours are needed for each answer or by setting a time limit to add pressure.

WHAT YOU'LL NEED
